C. Confuses the reader

D. Requires random events

20. Typing a final draft after editing is an example of:

A. Prewriting

B. Drafting

C. Publishing

D. Brainstorming

SECTION B: Structured Questions

Answer all questions. Total: 30 marks

Sample Composition for Reference (Use for Q1-Q2)

STRAND: How I Helped Save a Tree in My School Compound

"Last term, I noticed that a big tree in our school compound was about to be cut down. I felt sad because it provided shade for learners and birds. I talked to my friends about it, and we wrote a petition to the school administration. We also organized a clean-up campaign around the tree. Eventually, the headteacher decided not to cut the tree. The whole school celebrated by planting flowers around it. I was proud that our small actions had made a difference."

Exercise 1: Identify Writing Steps (5 marks)

From the sample composition above:

a) Name the step in the writing process where the writer generated ideas for saving the tree. (1 mark)

b) Identify the step where the writer organized and wrote the story. (1 mark)

c) Identify the step where the writer improved the clarity of events and actions. (1 mark)

d) Identify the step where the writer shared the story with others. (1 mark)

e) State one importance of following the writing process. (1 mark)

Exercise 2: Composition Based on a STRAND (10 marks)

Task: Write a composition of 6–8 sentences on the following STRAND:

"The Importance of Saving Forests in My Community"

Instructions:

- Follow the writing process: prewriting, drafting, revising, editing, publishing.
- Include: introduction, main events/ideas, conclusion.

