Reading Text – Section A: "Women Leaders in Kenya"

In Kenya, women have increasingly taken leadership roles in politics, education, and business. Leaders such as Hon. Martha Karua and Dr. Wangari Maathai have inspired many young girls to aim for positions of responsibility. Women leaders are often praised for being honest, organized, and caring towards their communities. For example, Dr. Wangari Maathai initiated the Green Belt Movement to plant trees across Kenya and protect the environment. Many schools now have female head teachers who manage their institutions efficiently. Women leaders also encourage education for girls and equal opportunities for all. Despite challenges like gender stereotypes, many Kenyan women continue to break barriers and serve their communities effectively.
