Narrative Passage for Section A (to read aloud or provide as audio):

"In a small village near the Mau Forest, there lived a young boy named Kamau. Every morning, Kamau walked to the river to fetch water for his family. One day, he noticed that the river had very little water because people upstream were dumping waste. Kamau became worried about the animals and people who relied on the river. He decided to talk to the village elders. Together, they organized a cleaning day where everyone collected rubbish and planted trees along the riverbank. Soon, the river became clean, and water returned to its usual level. Kamau felt proud that his actions had helped both people and wildlife."
