Listening Text – Section A: "The Role of a Good Leader in the Community"

A good leader in a community is someone who serves the people with honesty and fairness. They make decisions that benefit everyone, not only a few. A good leader listens to the concerns of citizens and ensures that public resources are used wisely. For example, in a Kenyan village, a community leader organized a tree-planting project to prevent soil erosion and provide shade for school children. He also held meetings every month to discuss issues like security, sanitation, and water supply. Good leaders are patient, approachable, and willing to learn from others. They also encourage teamwork among community members and lead by example. Leadership is not about power, but about serving others and improving their lives.
