3. Many birds actually do not stay in one place throughout the year. They fly to different locations, depending on the sighting of the rain-bearing clouds. When they sense that rain would soon be falling somewhere, they migrate to that place. This is because they know there would be seeds they could eat by picking from the ground or digging insects that fly around due to change of weather. When rain changes the pattern, the birds move with it but they return when the crops are flowering. When the crop is mature in on area, they shift to another place. (107 words) (4 x 1 = 4 marks)
