Poem for Section A: "The Baobab Tree"

High above the village square,
Stands the mighty baobab bare.
Its roots deep in the red soil ground,
Its branches spread wide, safe and sound.
Children play beneath its shade,
Stories told, and songs are made.
Birds nest on its giant arms,
Protected from the sun and harms.
The baobab sees the seasons change,
Its strength remains, so wide and strange.
It feeds the bees, it gives us fruit,
A Kenyan tree, both firm and cute.
