Passage 1: "The Brave Village Girl" (Excerpt)

A young girl named Achieng lived in a small village near Lake Victoria. One day, she noticed that the river used by the villagers for water had been polluted with plastic and waste. Many people were sick because of the dirty water. Achieng decided to take action. She gathered her friends and together they cleaned the river. She also told the village elders about the danger and suggested ways to keep the river clean. The villagers were amazed by her courage. Soon, everyone in the village joined her in planting trees along the riverbank and reducing waste. Achieng's actions taught the village a valuable lesson about taking responsibility for the environment.
